

Weekly Learning Reflections

Good afternoon class Astute and families!

What an amazing, jam-packed first week it has been in year 3! Members of class Astute have settled in brilliantly and are becoming increasingly confident in all aspects of school life. I have thoroughly enjoyed getting to know the children more and more each day and seeing their personalities start to shine through – it truly has been wonderful!

Our mornings have been spent creating postcards. The children have focused on a summer memory that they enjoyed spending with others. Notes were made to focus thoughts before illustrating and drafting the written content. Today the children edited before enjoying bringing all their efforts together to create a final piece.

I believe a particular highlight of our mornings has been using our iPads to discover TTRockstars. Although it is part of homework, TTRockstars is highly popular at Ranvilles and we even have a weekly assembly to celebrate the children's efforts. The children navigated the log in screens well before choosing their Rock name and creating their avatar. There are multiple ways to play but the overall aim is to become secure in times table knowledge and answer each question in less than a second. This will award them Rock Hero status and comes with a golden badge of honour but we celebrate a wide range of smaller successes each week too! I have added each pupils log on information to their portfolio here on class dojo so that they can access the online platform at home but more information about homework will come next week.

After being asked about it daily, the children have been assigned their house team during PE today. Each house is represented by a colour and the t-shirts can be ordered through the school office. However, our houses are not only used for PE, each pupil can earn house points for their house to contribute to the house cup. Something the pupils are very excited about. If your child was unsure on their house, please ping me a message and I can let you know.

I have very much enjoyed our first week back at school as, despite the heat, the children have been superstars. Many adults from around the school have noted their manners and positivity so they very much deserve a restful weekend, ready for Week 2!

I hope that you have a lovely weekend and enjoy the sunshine,

Miss Lamonte 😊
