

Weekly Learning Reflections

Week Beginning:

Happy Friday 😊

Another busy week has come to an end and as ever, the children have been superstars.

Thank you for all of the costumes that have been brought in. They look fab. If yours has not made it to us yet, please remember to send it in on Monday as we have a whole school performance on Tuesday. If you are having any issues, please contact we are more than happy to help and remember homemade is perfect too.

In maths this week we have been perfecting our times table skills. Arrays started us off on Monday as we revised how to use these to work out trickier number sentences before moving on to use related facts. The children have been excellent at using the phrase 'I know ... so I also know ...' to articulate their thinking. This helped in the latter part of the week as we tackled problem solving activities.

Some interesting Stone Age creatures have roamed our classroom this week as the children penned their non-chronological reports. Having become confident with paragraphs the children used their notes to generate interesting sentences containing coordinating conjunctions and expanded noun phrases brilliantly. We finished the week with an enticing introduction that hopefully hooks in a reader. The children are looking forward to writing these up in neat to share with you in the future.

Pupil Star of the Week - ★ Tabitha ★

Many of the children identified Tabitha's consistent kind and caring nature that allows her to have fantastic cooperation and collaboration skills. Others noted her independent efforts in all her learning and her determination to challenge herself in maths.

Teacher Star of the Week - ★ Kye ★

Having been our class Star of the Week on Monday, Kye continued to showcase EPIC learning skills throughout the week so had to be my choice this week. It has been excellent to see him persevere to develop speed as well as accuracy in his learning but also ensuring that he is challenging himself too. On top of that he has collaborated and supported others brilliantly this week.

Well done to our stars.

Hope that you all have a lovely weekend,

Mrs Mori 😊
