

Weekly Learning Reflections

Week Beginning: 20 January 2025

Another fantastic week completed in Victory class! The children continue to rise to the challenges set before them and it is great to see some of the class pushing themselves to achieve their best. I have been very impressed with their determination and desire to be a positive influence every day.

Our writing has brought Diagon Alley to life this week with the children applying their learning from the past couple of weeks in their own setting descriptions. It has been lovely to see the imagination and creativity of the children come through and I have thoroughly enjoyed reading their work.

Multiplication and Division has become the primary focus in Maths as we have begun our next unit. They have had to apply their knowledge to missing number problems this week and I have seen a wide variety of strategies being used which has led to some excellent discussion of the most efficient methods.

Across the curriculum the children have continued to work hard. First, they had to take on the role of historians, exploring artefacts uncovered at Sutton Hoo. There were some great questions being asked and children showed great analytical skills to decipher what we can learn from them. Following this, our attention turned to liquids and gases where the children explored the different properties and investigated how materials that are the same state of matter can behave differently. Finishing the week, the children are showing great enthusiasm for our Rock and Roll Music unit practising how to perform a walking base line today.

★ ★ ★ STARS OF THE WEEK ★ ★ ★

Pupil Star of the Week - ★ Evelyn ★

Evelyn was the children's choice for Class Star this week again. It seems to be becoming a common theme that the children consistently recognise Evelyn's hard work and her determined attitude in class. It goes to show what a fantastic role model Evelyn is and how her exemplar attitude has a positive attitude on those around her. Great work Evelyn, another fantastic week!

Teacher Star of the Week - ★ Maggie ★

My Star of the Week this week is Maggie! It is often hard to choose one child each week but Maggie has had a brilliant week. From the moment she entered the classroom on Monday morning to the moment she left today, Maggie has shown determination, enthusiasm and strived to achieve her best every moment. She has really taken her learning to the next level and can be incredibly proud of herself. Well done Maggie, you've had an amazing week and been an absolute superstar!

I hope you all have a lovely weekend,
Mr Castell
