Dear diary,

Today, was a desaster the worst one yet! I A started amazingly awsome, incredible. Mum was cooking my favourite breakfast, a full English. I loved it and I stood for a moment watching the snow flakes bleed down the air appreciatering how lucky I was. Next I gave my mum a huge hug I muttered under my breathe how can it get any better?

Later, mum told me to tidy my room upstairs. Suddenly, dads voice rose like thunder I rushed down stairs wondering what in the world had happend. Mum turned around tears dropped from her eyes I saw red bills in her hand I gave her a massive hug. My heart shreaded into one million pieces it felt like the world had turned upside down.

Driveing across the road, we passed ugly looking places, I was wondering is that were I'm going. We arrived. It was terrible! Grafeete on the walls, carpet all sticky, mould on all the walls and worst of all it stinked. I was lifeless, it was like a public toilet. Plodding around I spotted all sorts of bugs and dirt it was horrible! Mum was blaming dad, dad was blaming mum life was not good. I would rather live in the dump at this point.
